PREFACE.

In 1880, William S. Wood of Seymore, Ind., compiled and published a genealogy of the brothers, Jeremiah and Capt. John Wood, and descendants. He gives the birth of Jeremiah as being in the year 1678; married 1709; died 1730. John, married 1705; died 1725, and traces the descendants of Capt. John Wood, from his marriage with the oldest daughter of Col. Joseph Buckminster of Framingham, Mass. "Married, March 3, 1705, John Wood and Elizabeth Buckminster, both of this town," meaning Framingham, Mass.

In his work the compiler gives the names of the children of Capt. John and Elizabeth (Buckminster) Wood, but publishes none of their descendants, except those of Joseph Wood, a younger brother of Thomas Wood. Thomas Wood married Mary Taylor, and they were the parents of the twin brothers, John and Benjamin Wood.

I have labored persistently to find a complete record of their descendants, and trust this volume may meet with a kind reception.

The compiler of this volume does not claim perfection. It would be impossible to make it complete, as a few of the twenty-two branches have passed out of the knowledge of the remaining families.

He wishes to thank most sincerely all who have so kindly contributed records and information.

Portsmouth, N. H., January 1, 1902.

EXPLANATIONS.

The figures before the name are the number given that name for reference.

The figures after the name in the record of marriage, refer to that person's record in the following number.

The abbreviations are as follows: b. for born; m. for married; d. for died; res. for residence.

The generations are numbered from Capt. John Wood, the grandfather of Col. John and Benjamin Wood. This is as far back as the line has been traced on the paternal side, but Capt. John Wood's wife, Elizabeth Buckminster's ancestors have been traced back to England.

WHY THIS GENEALOGY CAME TO BE PUBLISHED.

"There 's a divinity that shapes our ends Rough-hew them how we will."

The writer of this work has had a busy life, and while he was general agent of the New Hampshire Statesman used to write up special news, and sometimes the industries of the towns visited, but never intended to publish a book of any kind, much less a genealogy.

A few years ago he accidentally came across a volume of "Descendants of the brothers Jeremiah and John Wood," published by William S. Wood, Seymore, Ind. The volume belonged to the Boston Public Library. In it he discovered that Capt. John Wood was a direct ancestor of the fourth generation back from the writer; that the book contained quite a full record of Jeremiah's descendants and but little of the descendants of Capt. John Wood. The writer determined to secure a volume of the work, wrote to the postmaster of Seymore, Ind., and learned from him that its publisher had deceased. He then wrote to the printer, "Press of Charles Hamilton," Worcester, Mass., and learned that they had not a copy left. He then visited numerous book stores of Boston, new and old, without success. While spending a vacation in Hancock, N. H., he accidentally secured a copy of the book. While perusing the genealogy he discovered that it contained the record of Capt. John Wood's children and part of his son Thomas Wood's descendants, including the twin brothers, John and Benjamin Wood, the latter being the grandfather of the writer. He then determined to collect, if possible, all necessary data of said twin brothers and publish them for the love he has for the family, and for the gratification and pleasure of the present as well as future generations.

Benjamin Wood was the writer's grandfather and died when the writer was eleven months old. Amasa Wood, the youngest son of Benjamin Wood, died in 1875. He was the writer's father and the last one of Benjamin's children to pass away. Four of the brothers of Amasa Wood had emigrated to western New York, Ohio, and Michigan before the writer was born. He soon began to realize he had quite a task on hand to get started in some of the families of both the brothers, John and Benjamin. The writer had, while a boy, seen all of Benjamin's children except Buckminster and Jessie. Joseph, the third son of Benjamin, went to Michigan. His wife and children all died previous to 1845, when he came back to New Hampshire, staying about a year, then he returned to his brother James who lived in Geneseo, N. Y., where he died. In 1850 the writer's uncle, James, came to Alstead. The writer could only spend one evening with him. He had seen the three daughters of Benjamin, but had lost all knowledge of the descendants of Lucy (Wood) Miller and Susannah (Wood) Hutchins. He also had but little knowledge of many of the twelve children of Col. John Wood. He remembered of his father receiving letters from Buckminster, from some place in Ohio, and almost despaired of ever receiving any information from that family. He wrote to his brother, Col. E. E. Wood, who has practised patent law in Cincinnati, O., forty years, and found his knowledge of the family was as limited as his own. He wrote to the postmaster of Geneseo, N. Y., requesting him to deliver a letter to some descendant of the late "Major James Wood." It fell into the hands of John Young, Esq., who writes that Gen. James Wood, son of Maj. James Wood, was his uncle by marriage and had lived in his family for fifty years. This was the first ray the writer received from the four Western families, and resulted in his finding 235 descendants of Buckminster and Polly Brooks Wood, 170 of whom are still alive; most of them in the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Michigan. One letter contained thirty-four names of children and grandchildren of Buckminster Wood Darling, a grandson of Buckminster Wood. The writer's experience in obtaining information from the descendants of Col. John Wood has been very fortunate. When a small boy he used to visit, with his father, three of the families in Surry, N. H., the Hills, the Browns, where the wife was the first teacher of the writer, the Holbrooks, who kept the hotel where the large teams from Vermont used to stop for feed or to stay over night on their way to market, then in Keene, the Babbitt boys, who helped their father carry on the farm where now are some of the most pleasant homes of Keene, also the two Metcalfs, one marrying a daughter of Col. John Wood and the other a granddaughter, Harriet Willis. The Carters he became acquainted with later in life after they moved to Lebanon, N. H., and where descendants are still flourishing in the same line of business pursued by father and grandfather; and last, but not least, the Willis family. The wife and mother, Betsey, a good Christian woman, was the mother of three of the daughters, Martha, Mary, and Lois, whom the writer was fortunate in meeting at Keene a few weeks since, after an absence of forty years. There was the Rev. John Wood, only son of Col. John, who passed away July, 1900; the writer visited him in Fitchburg during the winter of 1889–'90, and whose three daughters live at Wellesley, Mass.

But to go back to Benjamin's line. Nine months ago the writer did not know where to find even one of Lucy (Wood) Miller's descendants. He remembered meeting her in his boyhood days, but had lost all trace of the family. He had an indistinct idea that the family lived in either Hartland or Hartford, Vt. He visited Gov. S. E. Pingree who is town clerk of Hartford, and through his kind services found there were six girls in the family, all born in Orange, N. H., but brought up at West Hartford, Vt. He found 155 descendants, one living in Cannan, N. H., being an own cousin of the writer. Another own cousin was found in Deerfield, N. H., a daughter of Susannah (Wood) Hutchins, and a third cousin in the person of Mrs. Louise Spier, daughter of Dr. Jesse Wood.

He finds he has not mentioned the Benjamin Wood, Jr., family, who lived near his father's on a portion of the old homestead farm, or the family of Sally (Wood) Huntley, who lived in Marlow, N. H., and whose descendants are quite numerous in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

That the numerous families might have at least a book knowledge of each other is reason enough for publishing this book. The writer has received a great deal of pleasure in meeting a few of the cousins and wishes it were possible for him to meet them all. He wishes to thank sincerely all who have so kindly helped in furnishing valuable information, and trust the book may meet with a kind reception.

CAPT. JOHN WOOD.

FROM "DESCENDANTS OF THE BROTHERS JEREMIAH AND JOHN WOOD."

John Wood, brother of Jeremiah Wood, married the oldest daughter of Col. Joseph Buckminster of Framingham, Mass.

The following is from the Town Records of Framingham, Mass.: Married, March 3, 1705, John Wood and Elizabeth Buckminster, both of this town.

The great grandfather of Elizabeth (Buckminster) Wood, Thomas Buckminster, came to Boston in 1640, from England, and is named in the colonial records of that year. He was made freeman May 6, 1646. He was the owner of lands at Muddy River, now Brookline, Mass., where he lived. He died there Sept. 20, 1656. He left nine children. In his will he refers to Joseph as one of his youngest sons. The grandfather of Elizabeth (Buckminster) Wood was Joseph Buckminster, and was the first of that christian name in this country. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Hugh and Elizabeth Clark of Watertown, Mass., in 1665.

They had two children, Joseph, born July 31, 1666; Elizabeth, baptized Nov. 10, 1668.

The father died in 1668. Joseph Buckminster, second of the name, married May 12, 1686, Martha Sharpe of Muddy River, now Brookline, Mass.

They were the parents of Elizabeth (Buckminster) Wood, wife of John Wood.

His father, Joseph Buckminster, was a proprietor of land, and pioneer in settling Framingham where his name is first mentioned in 1693. His oldest child, Elizabeth, married John Wood in Framingham, March 3, 1705. He was seventeen years selectman, twelve years representative to the general court, and many years justice of the peace.

He held several military commissions; commanded a company of grenadiers in Sir Charles Holley's regiment in the expedition to Port Royal, September, 1710; subsequently had the command of a colonial regiment of militia.

Tradition describes him as being tall and athletic, of great physical power and of resolute will.

"Anapolis Royal, a seaport of Nova Scotia, at the mouth of the river Anapolis which enters into the Bay of Fundy 95 miles west of Halifax. It was founded in 1604 by the French who called it Port Royal."—Johnson's New Universal Cyclopedia, page 164. "In the autumn of 1709, a congress of delegates of all the colonies met at Rhode Island and determined on an expedition against Canada. The British ministry approved of the proposal, and the immediate reduction of Port Royal was agreed upon Aug. 1, 1710.

"Accordingly an English force came over in five frigates and a bomb ketch. They were joined by the colonial troops, and started from Boston on the eighteenth of September, 1710. On the twenty-fourth they arrived at the place. The governor despairing to hold out against so formidable a force, surrendered after the firing of a few shots."—Barton's History of N. H., pages 119–120.

This was the expedition in which Col. Joseph Buckminster took an active part.

Joseph Buckminster, by his first wife, Martha Sharpe, had eight children (none by his second wife, Martha Dell). Had:

Elizabeth, b. 1687; m. March 1, 1705, to John Wood (201) of Framingham, as per town records; afterwards he settled at what is now Woodville, in the town of Hopkinton, Mass., where his descendants now reside. He died in August, 1725. His widow married May 6, 1728, Josiah Rice of Framingham; he died in 1745, and Elizabeth died several years later.

2.

Johanna Buckminster, second child of Joseph and Martha (Sharpe), b. 1690; m. June 23, 1712, John Eames, son of John and Elizabeth (Eames) Eames; had ten children; 2d, she m. March 19, 1740, John Butler of Framingham.

3.

Martha, b. 1693; m. Ebenezer Winchester of Framingham, Feb. 13, 1718; had seven children. Ebenezer

He owned a large estate in Framingham; held several commissions; was colonel about 1738; was twenty-eight years a selectman; more than thirty years town clerk; more than twenty years a representative at the general court. He died at the age of 83 years, after a long life of public service and personal worth. He had Joseph, b. March 1, 1720; he was the fourth Joseph Buckminster in direct succession, and the first to enter the ministry; graduated at Harvard college 1739, and was pastor at Rutland more than 50 years. Rev. Joseph's son Joseph was b. Oct. 3, 1751; graduated at Yale college 1770; settled at Portsmouth, N. H.; was Doctor of Divinity. Rev. Dr. Buckminster gave an address and sermon in the North church, Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 1, 1789, before George Washington, during his visit to New Hampshire.

Dr. Joseph's son, Joseph Stevens Buckminster, b. May 26, 1784; graduated 1800; was ordained over the Brattle Street church in Boston, Jan. 30, 1805, not 21 years old. His father, Dr. Buckminster, preached the sermon. He died their pastor June 9, 1812.

He was also a minister; died in 1752; interred in the Buckminster lot, Framingham. Had five children. The family has been honored in its descendants in every generation. Joseph Buckminster was buried in Framingham, Mass.; an iron fence surrounds the family lot, also the following:

JOHN AND BENJAMIN WOOD.

The twin brothers, John (220) and Benjamin (221), resembled each other very much. Their parents could hardly tell them apart when they were a short distance away, and to make sure of the right one used to call on them, John—Ben.

Benjamin, after his return from the army on the Lexington alarm call, was married and had two children previous to his service in the army the second time.

During his term of service the last time he returned home on a short furlough. His brother John proposed to him that he would fill his place for a few days, that he might stay at home with his wife and children a little longer, which he accordingly did, John's furlough afterwards giving him an opportunity to take his place again in the army.

I herewith publish the Revolutionary War service of Thomas Wood (212), Benjamin Wood (221), and John Wood (220).

HISTORICAL SERMON.

The following is copied from a sermon preached at Alstead, N. H., on the first Sabbath in January, 1826, with historical sketches of the town, by Seth S. Arnold, A. M.:

"Thomas Wood of English descent, came from Brookfield, Mass., to this town, in March, 1780. He married Molly Taylor of Hopkinton, Mass., by whom he had seven sons and three daughters. He took part in the war at Bunkers Hill, and at White Plains, before he came here. His sons' names were Thomas, Samuel, John, Benjamin, Joseph, William, and James. Thomas, Jun., and Samuel continued in Massachusetts. Col. John Wood married Lois Olds for his first wife, and Widow Hutchins for his second, by both of whom he had twelve children; the youngest is the only son.

"Colonel Wood held a military commission twenty years. John and Benjamin were twins.

"Benjamin Wood married Lucy Olds, a sister of his brother John's wife, and after her death he married the Widow Willis, sister to his brother's second wife.

"He had six sons and five daughters.[1] The sons' names

[1] There is no other record which gives Benjamin Wood, twin brother of Col. John Wood, more than three daughters. They were Sally (Wood) Huntley, Lucy (Wood) Miller, and Susannah (Wood) Hutchins and an adopted daughter, Hariot (Wood) Isham. The Joseph Wood referred to, who practiced in Alstead about 1776, and William Wood "now in Canaan," and James Wood, who practiced in Hartford, Vt., were sons of Thomas (212) and Molly Taylor (213) Wood. Dr. James Wood above referred to, within the memory of the writer, lived with his daughter, Almira, in East Alstead, where he died. Another daughter of his was Ann, who married Charles Dwinnell, who used to keep the "Sun Tavern" in Keene, N. H. They are both buried in the cemetery in Keene, N. H.

were Buckminster, Benjamin, James, Joseph, Jesse, and Amasa. Two of them now live in town. Jesse was a physician in the state of New York, and died a few years since.

"Joseph Wood studied physick with Doct. Wood of Grafton, Mass., and began practice in this place about 1776, where he continued two or three years. William Wood came here about 1778, and is now in Canaan, in this state. James Wood married Ann Holland of Pelham, Mass., by whom he had four sons and three daughters. He studied physic with Doct. Freeland, of Sutton, Mass., and commenced practice in Hartford, Vt., but has long since discontinued."

The following is copied from a stone in the cemetery in Keene, N. H.:

"Charles Dwinnell, Died May 28, 1879. Ae. 66 years, 4 mos.

"Ann his wife, Died Jan. 24, 1876. Ae. 79 yrs."

THIRD GENERATION.

BENJAMIN WOOD
AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

221. Benjamin Wood, twin brother of Col. John Wood (220), was b. in Framingham, Mass., April 29, 1751; His father, Thomas Wood (212), moved to Hopkinton, Mass., when he was young. They were both living in Brookfield, Mass., previous to April 19, 1775, on which day they both responded to the Lexington Alarm call. He returned home, May 1, 1775. He was married June 15, 1775, to Lucy Olds (224). He afterwards enlisted previous to June 30, 1778, and was credited with six months' service. BUCKMINSTER WOOD.

226. Buckminster Wood, the oldest son of Benjamin (221) and Lucy Olds (224) Wood, was born in Brookfield, Mass., April 8, 1776. When he was less than four years old, his brother Benjamin (228) was three, and his sister Sally (230) was ten months old, when their parents with their grandfather, Thomas (212), emigrated from Brookfield, Mass., to East Alstead, N. H. The one hundred miles' journey across the country, which must have taken three or four days, in the blustering month of March, goes to show the heroic nature of our ancestors. We find very few records of these families, except of births, marriages, and deaths.

Buckminster (226) married Polly Brooks (227) of Alstead, previous to 1800. He moved to Orange, Vt., where his daughters, Lucinda (273) and Sophia (276), and oldest son, Elias Howard (278), were born, and he next lived in Ludlowville, Tompkins Co., N. Y., and finally settled in Avon, Lorain Co., Ohio, where his wife, Polly Brooks (227), died, and was there buried. After her death he lived in Sandusky, Ohio, where he died about 1840, and was buried beside his wife in Avon, Ohio.

He had five children; the three oldest, Lucinda, Sophia, and Elias Howard, raised up large families of children and grandchildren. Most of them settled in the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Michigan. His descendants at this time number two hundred and thirty-five, one hundred and seventy of whom are still living. Many of them did valiant service in the Union armies, in the War of the Rebellion.

H., July 10, 1839; dismissed April 30, 1845; also was acting pastor at Whitefield, N. H., at the same time; was pastor at Gilmanton from 1845 to 1847; at Ossipee from May, 1848, to October, 1863; at Ossipee Corner and North Wolfeboro from 1863 to 1866; Gilsum from 1866 to 1875; without charge there from 1875 to 1880; at Winslow, Maine, 1880-'81; Keene, N. H., until death. He was converted in the great revival at East Alstead in 1827, where eighty united with the church, ten of whom became ministers. "Having chosen the ministry as his calling, in September, 1831, he set out on foot for Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, intending to work his way through college. The first term he supported himself, using what he earned during the summer, and also performing some manual labor at the school. After a little more than a year, his health failing from overwork, he was obliged to suspend his studies for three years, and ultimately gave up the idea of a collegiate course. This he termed the great trial of his life. In 1836 his health had so far recovered that he was able to enter the Theological Seminary at Gilmanton, N. H., and was a member of the first class that graduated there." While at Gilsum he served the town as superintending school committee for six years. His health having somewhat failed, he was obliged to give up preaching in 1875, but for thirty-six years previous he very seldom lost a Sabbath, and frequently spoke of his great enjoyment in the work of the gospel ministry, and his thankfulness that he had been so long spared to do it. It was during the early part of his ministry in Gilsum that a parsonage and lot were bought, and through his exertions the church edifice largely repaired and remodeled, and a new one purchased.

Mrs. Lydia Weckham Vosburgh (778), adopted daughter of Maj. James Wood (234), and who was brought up with Gen. James Wood (773), writes of him. "He prepared for college in the Geneseo Wesleyan Seminary, and graduated from the Union College, Schenectady, in 1842. His war record is known. He was gifted, brave, and true. I never saw him out of temper in my life, sweet and loving always. He was my childhood hero and idol."

John Young, Esq., of Geneseo, N. Y., writes of him: "He was my uncle by marriage and lived in my family for fifty years. He was a man of much more than ordinary ability, and as a lawyer had few peers in western New York. He died very suddenly, with his harness on his back. During the War of the Rebellion, he raised and commanded the 136th N. Y. Vols., and was at Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Mission Ridge, Chattanooga, and with Sherman in his march to the sea. During the Sherman campaign he commanded a brigade, and received at the close of the war the promotion of Brevet Major General, U. S. V. Amasa Wood (245) was married April 12, 1821, when he bought the homestead farm of his father, and Howard, as he was always called by the family, was thirteen years old, and lived the remainder of his minority with Amasa Wood. Leavitt Howard Griffin m. Lydia Gould, daughter of Capt. Benjamin Gould of Alstead, N. H. He built a house and sawmill near "Derry Hill," Acworth, N. H. He was badly injured in his mill, and lived only forty-eight hours afterwards. He had two sons, Burton and Alonzo. His wife and children moved to Keene, N. H. The boys married and lived in Manchester, Vt. They are both deceased.

The writer of this work remembers of his father visiting Howard at his home in Acworth.

COLONEL JOHN WOOD
AND DESCENDANTS.

THIRD GENERATION.

COL. JOHN WOOD.

220. John Wood, twin brother of Benjamin Wood (221), was born in Framingham, Mass., April 29, 1751; m. Lois Olds (222), Nov. 25, 1778; m. 2d, widow Abigail Stowell Hutchins (223), Nov. 19, 1806; d. in East Alstead, N. H., Dec. 28, 1830. In March, 1780, with his wife and oldest child, only four months old, in company with his father, Thomas Wood, and his twin brother, Benjamin Wood (221), and wife and three small children, he moved to East Alstead, N. H., where he settled and brought up a family of twelve children, only one of them dying young. An additional description of Col. John Wood (220) is found in Rev. Seth Arnold's sermon.

222. Lois Olds, b. March 19, 1759; d. in East Alstead, N. H., Dec. 28, 1803.

223. Abigail Stowell Hutchins, b. in Winchester, N. H., Oct. 29, 1764; d. in East Alstead, Aug. 20, 1838.

Rev. John Wood (270), in a letter to Rev. Sumner G. Wood dated Nov. 29, 1897, writes: "In my early boyhood days, Fast days and Thanksgiving days were days of obligation. All good citizens were bound by conscience to strict observance according to scriptures as then understood and interpreted. The one service on Thanksgiving days, and the two services and sermon on Fast days were more generally attended by the people than the average Sabbath congregation. All were accommodated in going as they went on foot or 'rode on horseback.' The older children went on foot, the fathers and mothers on horseback, and carriages were not then introduced. My father brought the first wagon into East Alstead. Previous to this we rode to church on horseback, father in the saddle and I in his lap, mother behind on a pillion (attached to the saddle and the crupper by leather strings), and my sister in her lap. Our horse was not a large one, though her ability for duty I never heard doubted. When on a trot she took special care to plant her feet on safe and solid ground. The pommel of the saddle, which was my seat, was not soft. In this way we used to go a day's journey annually, to visit my grandparents in Winchester, N. H. Keene was the halting and baiting place. This mode of conveyance was general among the people at that time except in snow drifting in winter, then oxen and teams furnished accommodations. Foot stoves furnished all the heat in the meeting-house, replenished at noon at a neighbor's fireplace, when lunch and the sermon were discussed, sometimes rather warmly."

The Congregationalist of February, 1899, contains an article entitled "Rills from the Hills," which gives a short account of the church in East Alstead, N. H., where the two families of Col. John and Benjamin Wood were brought up.

"Bethlehem, though small, gave the world the greatest prince it ever saw. So some of our little churches, weak, neglected by the larger ones because of their littleness and retired situation, have sent forth streams of blessing that have been a real addition to the world's good.

"Such a church is that in East Alstead. Organized in 1788, the second Congregational church in the town, three miles from the parent church, settling its first minister, Levi Lankton, the following year, erecting its meeting-house in 1798, which still remains, served by fourteen ministers to the present time, and having only 472 members in all from the beginning, it has left a record that some larger churches might covet. Levi Lankton closed his labors in 1823, though not formally dismissed until 1828. Though a good man, for some reason his influence over his people in the last of his life among them waned.

"Additions were few. Irreligion, profanity, and intemperance prevailed. The parish acquired the name of 'Satan's kingdom,' Satan being the man who kept the groggery near the church. From 1823 to 1826 Rev. S. S. Arnold of the parent church ministered for one fourth of the time, so the light never went out of the sanctuary. But there were a few praying ones whose hearts were almost broken over the situation. In 1826 Moses Ger-ould, a student of theology with Mr. Arnold, offered to go over to the East parish and hold meetings every Sunday, and his offer was accepted.

"For the first few Sabbaths the carpenter's saw and plane could be heard on one side of the place of meeting and the rattle of toddy sticks upon the other. But God's spirit soon came upon the place with mighty power, and the whole place was shaken as by a mighty rushing wind, with the result of not only bringing into the church that year fifty-two members, forty being heads of families, but of entirely changing the character of the parish. Every corner was reached, and from being a Sabbath-breaking, godless community, it became as sober, God-fearing, industrious a place as could be found. For some years from 150 to 200 were present at the weekly prayer meetings held in the afternoon. Mr. Gerould was ordained its pastor in 1828, as soon as he had finished his studies, and served it in all more than eighteen years. During this time and afterwards it was regarded as a model parish.

"Out of that revival and subsequent ones ten ministers went forth from that little church to bless the world, as well as four ministers' wives. Among the ministers may be mentioned Harvey Adams, one of the Iowa band, who lived just across the line in Acworth, but who came under the influence of this work of grace. While religion was the chief business of the people, education was not neglected. 'Select schools' were opened for the education of the young men and women, who gladly availed themselves of the opportunity, and 'subscription schools' each year added to the length of the public schools for the benefit of the younger ones. Singing schools and writing schools brought the privileges of these accomplishments within the reach of all.

"The pastor's part of this educational work may be better understood from a record he has left when in speaking of the men who became ministers he says 'nearly every one I carried to Meriden (Kimball Union Academy) the first time, and many other times, and to college also.

"Though the town has suffered from the death and emigration of many of its best people of former times, the light in that old sanctuary has not ceased to burn and to brighten many a heart. Nature has done much for the village and parish, overlooking as it does Warren's pond and its surrounding slopes, while in the distant west is seen the long stretch of the Green Mountains of Vermont, lifting themselves against the sky."

HENRY WOOD CARTER.

I.

1008. Henry Wood Carter was b. in Concord, N. H., March 11, 1822; m. Caroline A. Leavitt (1009), May 2, 1843; m. 2d, Julia E. Wilson (1010), May 1, 1848; m. 3d, Marion Ardelia Rice (1011), Aug. 7, 1859; d. at Lebanon, N. H., Feb. 25, 1897.

When Henry Wood Carter was quite young his parents moved to Warner and followed the business of tavern keeping there and at Bradford. When a mere boy he was sick a year with rheumatic fever, and while yet very lame opened a small fancy goods store in one corner of his father's bar-room—as the public room was then called. Here young Carter learned the rudiments of the business he followed through life. At sixteen he went to Concord to travel for Mr. Boyd at $20 per month, and later engaged with Roby, Kimball & Merrill, Concord, book publishers. He sold from a team to country stores. Leaving Concord after a few years he next traveled with a big team, for Stephen Thayer of New Ipswich, who had thirty teams on the road stocked with essences, extracts, and notions. After saving a few hundred dollars he embarked in the Yankee notion business on his own account, and immediately attracted the attention of customers by his gorgeous team, in which he took great pride. He first had headquarters at Amherst, where he married his first wife, Caroline Leavitt, who died two years afterwards. Soon after the death of his first wife he moved to Chelsea, Vt., where he married Julia Wilson, and after her decease, Marion A. Rice of Chelsea. Mr. Carter bought the residence where he died, of Hon. A. H. Cragin, Aug. 1, 1859, and Lebanon has since been his home, although for more than 30 years after moving here he spent but little time in town, he finding both pleasure and profit in personally conducting his business of traveling merchant, in which he had no peer. At one time he had three four-horse teams serving his customers, all of which were the best ever seen in this country in a similar business. He was diligent in business, and the ostentatious methods adopted by him in his trade did not extend to his personal affairs, as he mingled little with his neighbors and would never accept the smallest public office. Mr. Carter was naturally strong physically, strictly temperate and extremely generous with his relatives and personal friends. He brought his aged parents to Lebanon and their last days were passed in affluence and comfort.
